Get comfortably settled in your hotel and enjoy the rest of the day at your leisure.

Veraguas, Panama's largest province, is characterized by the richness of its agricultural lands, its mountains, its coastlines, and its history. Veraguas is also known for the largest island in the American Pacific, called Coiba Island, considered the Galapagos of Central America for its great biodiversity and its preserved sublime beaches.

IMPORTANT: Catalina is a sweet mix of surf spot, fishing village, and starting point for many activities. It consists of a main street and although bordered by a large beach, it is not a seaside resort, just a few hotels, bars and restaurants, few shops, no bank or ATM. From the village, you can organize different excursions oriented towards surfing, fishing, diving, or visiting the surrounding islands, particularly the famous Coiba National Park.
