Travel Tips

Bring comfortable hiking shoes for mountain treks and rainforest walks.

Pack waterproof clothing for both the rainforest and coastal regions.

Be mindful of altitude adjustments when exploring the Andes.

Weather Preparedness

The weather varies significantly depending on the region. In the Amazon, expect hot, humid conditions with frequent rain.

The Andes can be cooler with strong sun during the day but cold at night. The Galapagos Islands are generally warm, but ocean breezes can cool things down in the evening. Packing layers is essential.

Fitness Requirements

A moderate level of fitness is required for this tour, as it involves hiking, walking on uneven terrain, and some strenuous activities in high-altitude regions. However, the itinerary is flexible, and most activities can be adjusted according to personal fitness levels.
