Textile manufacturing in Ghana is an industry consisting of ginneries and textile mills producing batik, wax cloth, fancy printed cloth and Kente cloth. Firms have located in Ghana to serve local and regional markets with printed African patterned fabrics. The industry has shown signs of significant growth in recent years, promoting high-quality traditionally designed fabrics as "Made in Ghana" to niche markets, especially the US. Ghanaian textile companies prefer to locate within designated industrial areas to take advantage of Ghana's free zone regime and stable operating environment. Today, Ghana's textiles industry includes vertically integrated mills, horizontal weaving factories and the traditional textile manufacturing firms involved in spinning, hand-weaving and fabric-processing.

The dry, savannah climate in the northern regions of the country is ideal for the cultivation of cotton, which is the primary material used by mills, weavers, batik, and tie-dye manufacturers in Ghana. The industry is supported by National Vocational Training Institutes throughout the country. These institutes provide basic practical and theoretical training in tailoring and dressmaking. There are also a growing number of private fashion design institutes and internationally acclaimed designers that teach latest techniques to aspiring textile designers. The government has initiated various policies aimed at restructuring and improving the textiles industry. The objectives include Increase of employment opportunities for the growing population Expansion and diversification of the economy Promotion of both domestic and foreign investment.

Day 05: Akosombo - Kumasi and UNESCO World Heritage Site Visit (6 hrs drive)

Breakfast and hotel check out.

Depart early morning for Kumasi in Ashanti Region; the Kingdom of Gold, History and Culture. Make a brief stop at Krobo-Odumase to visit the Cedi Bead Factory and workshop where beautiful African jewelry is made of clay, bones and glass. Put on your protective goggles and try your hands in the crushing of bottles and polishing of finished beads and observe beads designing, firing, polishing and stringing. You may purchase already made beads for friends and family back home.

Beads play a very important role especially in the life and culture of the Krobo people of Ghana. They are adorned to mark family status, on special occasions and the important rites of passage of girls to puberty called the “Dipo”. Participants will be shown around the factory and participate in the making of beads by hand in batches in a traditional manner.

Here you will watch the centuries-old process from start to finish: to make new beads, the bead-makers first crush old bottles into small chips, then arrange them in glazed moulds, before placing them in what looks like a fiery pizza oven for about 45 minutes. They also restore worn beads – some of them many centuries old – by placing them intact in an appropriate mould, then baking them at low heat for about 15 minutes so that they come out shiny as new. You will also have an opportunity to visit the market and purchase some of the beads.

Continue to Kumasi with Lunch enroute (on own account).
