Day 03: Inuit Settlement at the Ilulissat Icefjord

Breakfast at the hotel. Travel by bus as far as the road goes, then continue on a guided walk to the old Inuit settlement of Sermermiut at the UNESCO-listed Ilulissat Ice fjord. Various Inuit cultures lived here over the past 4,000 years, and remains from ancient settlement layers can still be seen. Learn about local traditions and history before European contact, and enjoy views across the icebergs. Walking distance: approx. 3 km round-trip. Hiking time: approx. 1 hour. Terrain: mainly track bridge with some uneven and rocky sections. Total tour duration: approx. 3 hours.

After the hike, you will visit a local family for a home visit or Kaffeemik. Kaffeemik is a traditional social gathering in Greenland, an important part of local culture usually held in someone's home or a communal space. Greenlanders are known for welcoming visitors into their homes, inviting everyone for coffee and cake. You will have the opportunity to see national costumes and learn about the lives of locals, isolated from the rest of the world. Tour duration: about 1,5 hours.

Important: Trips to Greenland are always subject to weather, fog and ice conditions. Therefore the sequence of the day tours and excursions in Greenland is subject to change, or if needed, an alternative excursion will be operated if available. In addition, delays and flight cancellations between Iceland and Greenland can happen. Therefore we strongly recommend you buy travel insurance in the country of residence to cover any additional travel expenses should your flights be delayed or cancelled due to weather. Finally, we recommend not to book any international flight directly after a trip from Greenland; ideally, staying a minimum of two nights in Iceland after the Greenland trip to avoid the risk of missing an international flight.
